Chief Minister of Maharashtra Late Shri Nashikrao Tirpude, the college was born under the auspices of Yugantar Education Society, Nagpur, a premier non-governmental organization in Central India, dedicated to the social work training among the people belonging to backward classes of the society.

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Without basic education, people have little scope for changing and improving their lives. Education brings opportunities for development because it enables people to think critically and make informed choice. The ability to read is the base to education. Illiterate people are at permanent disadvantage, unable to improve themselves and to play a full part in society. At the national level, it is not possible to have a skilled workforce without people who can read and write. People need literacy skills if they are to benefit from education, not just through school but from life. The ability to read is at the heart of self education and lifelong learning.

Libraries go beyond formal education. Public libraries offer a unique opportunity to provide practical and cost-effective solutions, with their principles of open access and resource sharing. They are well placed to offer learning resources to a wide public in both print and electronic form. They are also at the heart of personal and community development and can provide equal access to information for women and girls. Libraries encourage and sustain literacy, and support the development of cultural industries such as publishing and book selling. But for this to happen, public library networks must be properly resourced and recognized as mainstream for education and development. This is the very purpose of this interdisciplinary National seminar for the academicians, librarians and the remaining stakeholders.
